New Rigwash cleaner degreaser now available for the offshore drilling industry

(Wake Forest, NC - September 5, 2013) - Environmental Solution, Inc. distributors of Enviroligic, Inc.'s eco-friendly industrial cleaning products, today announced the release of a brand new product with myriad applications in the offshore drilling industry.

RigWash™ is the only bioremedial cleaner degreaser awarded the Gold Standard by CEFAS, the Centre for Environment, Fisheries & Aquaculture Science. The UK's most diverse applied marine science centre, they help to shape and implement policy through internationally renowned science and collaborative relationships that span the EU, UK government, non-governmental organisations, research centres and industry.

RigWash™ can be used for cleaning all surfaces, including all metals, rubber, plastics, acrylic, chrome and plated finishes and painted surfaces without fear of warping, etching, weakening or corroding. It also acts as a dispersant and causes no damage to aquatic life. One major benefit to oil and gas operators is the fact that product comes in a highly-concentrated liquid form so unlimited quantities can be stored on board, eliminating frequent supply runs.

The product utilizes bioremedial technology to literally "eat" grease, oil and hydrocarbons off any hard surface by using naturally occurring, harmless microorganisms with specially formulated bio-surfactants that degrade hydrocarbons. As a result, waste management costs are greatly reduced.

"We are very happy to make this announcement since we know how highly-regulated the oil and gas industry is," says John Paparone, Owner of Environmental Solution, Inc. "Rigwash will help oil and gas companies demonstrate their environmental compliance at a very high level."
